LIGHTHOUSE EXPANDS COVID-19 EMERGENCY FOOD DISTRIBUTION

2,000 food boxes filled with perishable food will be distributed starting this week from Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church in Clarkston and St. David's Episcopal Church in Southfield

PONTIAC, Mich. (June 2, 2020) – Lighthouse, a Pontiac-based nonprofit dedicated to fighting homelessness and poverty, is expanding its COVID-19 emergency food distribution efforts across Oakland County to meet the urgent, increasing need for food caused by the global pandemic.

This week through the end of August, 2,000 food boxes filled with 20 pounds of perishable items, including fresh fruits and vegetables, will be distributed from St. David's Episcopal Church in Southfield and Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church in Clarkston to up to 1,000 households per week from each location. (Please see additional distribution details below.)

"Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church is grateful to be partnering with Lighthouse for this worthwhile project," said Mission & Outreach Development Pastor Bob Hegdal. "Food insecurity is something that has no borders or lines, touching people in every community and we want to be an asset for the region in helping address this basic human need. We are committed to helping impact this issue in our community, region and beyond."

This effort will increase Lighthouse's total food distribution to 3,400 households a week representing nearly 10,000 individuals. The fresh produce is part of the USDA's Farmers to Families program and is being provided by a network of more than 1,000 growers to help keep the food supply chain intact and prevent fresh, perishable food from going to waste.

"The COVID-19 crisis has hit local families hard and no one knows when it will end," said Lighthouse CEO Ryan Hertz. "We are truly thankful to our partners, donors and supporters, who are enabling us to dramatically increase the amount of food we're distributing, and the emergency shelter we're providing to some of the most vulnerable members of our community. The addition of these perishable food boxes will help local families tremendously."

Lighthouse has also increased its emergency shelter outreach from 32 people per week to more than 75 individuals during COVID-19. Emergency shelter is being provided using local hotel rooms while the rotating shelter, which moves from congregation to congregation each week, is unable to operate. Recent reports indicate nearly 24-percent of the state's workforce is unemployed as a result of the economic fallout from COVID-19. That's putting a tremendous strain on the budgets of local families who need additional support to put food on the table each week.

Families and individuals in need can call (248) 920-6000 and press the number 2 to sign up for the Wednesday or Thursday food distribution, or simply show up between 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. Distribution sites for perishable food boxes are as follows:
